While Mrs. Clarence Bowlen, who lives on the Wm. Harlow farm, southeast of Norborne, was hunting hens' nests Tuesday morning and found a man's saddle under a pile of brush and cornstalks in the field about 130 yards from the barn. The saddle is well preserved and appears to have cost $18 or $20 when new. Judging from appearances the saddle must have been hidden there at least three months ago.—Norborne Democrat.

A hole about the size of the top of a salt barrel was burned in the floor of the primary room of the Bogard public school building sometime Tuesday night. How the fire caught seems to be a mystery, unless it was the work of some tramps who were in town Tuesday. The janitor of the schoolhouse had split some kindling for the morning's fire, which was missing, and it is supposed that the tramps had built a fire in the stove and camped there for the night, carelessly setting the floor on fire.—Bogard Dispatch.

Four miles northeast of Brookfield last Monday morning about 9 o'clock occurred an appalling accident in which Alfred Farris, a 15-year-old boy, shot his little 2-year-old sister, Mabel. The lad had been down at the pond, near his home, in search of ducks. Returning to the house, he cleaned his shotgun and was under the impression that he had removed the shell. A Monster Hog.

NEW MURDOCK, KAS. Mar. 10, '08. C. P. VANDIVER,

Keytesville, Mo. DEAR FRIEND:—I noticed in the issue of the COURIER of February 28 that a party butchered a hog weighing 675 pounds, and you asked if anyone could beat that. Inclosed I send you a clipping from the Kingman (Kas.) Journal of one that will beat that a little. I send this to show what can be done out here in Kansas. The party that had these hogs lives close to this place and the clipping is a true statement.

With best wishes to yourself and all old Chariton friends, I remain,

Yours truly,

A. C. JOHNSON.

The COURIER believes it would be impossible for Missouri to be as "hoggy" as Kansas, and for that reason and to please Dr. Johnson we reproduce the Journal's hog story. Here it is:

C. A. Trostle of route No. 2 butchered two of the largest hogs Monday we have ever seen. He weighed them Saturday and they weighed 770 pounds and 545 pounds. They were two of the Duroc-Jerseys which Mr. Trostle makes a specialty of raising.
